OAKLAND, CA--(Marketwired - November 19, 2015) - The Clorox Company (NYSE: CLX) has earned a top score of 100 percent on the Human Rights Campaign's 2016 Corporate Equality Index (CEI). The CEI is a national benchmarking survey and report on corporate policies and practices related to lesbian, gay, bisexual and transgender (LGBT) equality in the workplace.

Clorox is one of 77 U.S. companies to have earned a perfect score on the CEI every year since 2006 and is one of 407 U.S. companies to earn top marks this year. With its 100 percent score, Clorox has also been designated a Best Place to Work for LGBT Equality.

"We're focused on building a 'Growth Culture' that will help us accelerate good growth, which means growing our business the right way. An important part of this is helping to ensure that our people feel supported and comfortable being who they really are when they come to work every day," said CEO Benno Dorer. "We have a lot of smart, creative people, and that's all that matters. Our consumers are diverse, our employees are diverse, and we wouldn't have it any other way."

The 2016 CEI rated more than 1,000 businesses in the report, which evaluates LGBT-related policies and practices including non-discrimination workplace protections, domestic partner benefits, transgender-inclusive health care benefits, competency programs and public engagement with the LGBT community.

Fostering diversity and inclusion is foundational to Clorox's people strategy and includes support of the company's five employee resource groups -- LGBT, African-American, Asian/Pacific, Hispanic and women -- as well as the company's four employee networks: EcoNetwork (sustainability), NextGen (millennials), ORBIT (remote employees) and VetNet (veterans).

These groups enable individuals to connect with one another and collectively with Clorox. They also help to foster professional relationships, provide insights on multicultural marketing and supplier diversity initiatives, promote sustainability and support Clorox's diversity-related community outreach programs. Open to all employees, each ensures every employee has access to support, inspiration, and personal and professional development.
