

Verizon-Yahoo deal at risk of renegotiation - WSJ
Friday, October 14, 2016 12:31:46 AM (GMT)

- Citing an earlier statement from General Counsel Craig Silliman earlier, the WSJ reports that Verizon may change the terms of the acquisition after Verizon said it was "reasonable" to believe Yahoo's data breach has a material impact on the company, unless Yahoo proves otherwise.
- A person familiar with the matter says Yahoo thinks the consequences of the breach were already represented in the its results if user experience has changed due to the incident. An investigation is being carried out and Verizon will only decide how to proceed after the results of the investigation.
