Greg joins Key with experience spanning the financial, healthcare, and technology industries – most recently serving as Chief Diversity Officer at United Airlines. In this role, he developed and executed United's global diversity and inclusion strategy, including leader development, employee engagement and resource groups, and relationship management with partners throughout the company. He also has held past roles at Northwestern Mutual Life, UBS, Bank of America and GE Healthcare.

"We are proud to welcome Greg to KeyBank. Diversity, equity, and inclusion are cornerstones of our culture – representing both who we are and how we do business. Greg has tremendous respect for that legacy and shares our unwavering commitment to advancing recruiting, development and movement of diverse talent and suppliers across our company," said Chris Gorman, KeyBank President and Chief Operating Officer.

A veteran of the United States Navy, Greg served as a 2nd Class Petty Officer. He also was named as a Top 100 Executive in Diversity by Black Enterprise Magazine in 2018 and recognized in Ebony Magazine's Power 100 in 2017. Greg is active in his community, serving on multiple boards as a trusted advisor, including The Thurgood Marshall College Fund. He holds a BS from Tuskegee University, an MS from Stanford University, both in electrical engineering. Greg also has received multiple industry certifications, including Six Sigma.
