

Uber's "top dealmaker" leaves company - WSJ
Tuesday, October 23, 2018 06:57:37 AM (GMT)

- The WSJ reports that the resignation of corporate development head Cameron Poetzsch follows a 26-Sep WSJ report on Poetzsch's alleged sexual misconduct in the office.
- Uber tells the WSJ that Poetzsch's resignation is effective immediately, and CFO Nelson Chai will assume Poetzsch's responsibilities until a replacement is found.
- People familiar with the matter tell the WSJ that some people on an internal panel who were briefed on a law firm's investigation of Poetzsch felt the company should fire him.
- StreetAccount notes that Uber has a history of allegedly tolerating sexual harassment.

Reference Links:

- Wall Street Journal - today's article
- Wall Street Journal - 26-Sep article

Industries: Computer & Internet Services

Primary Identifiers: 0B49NF-E

Related Identifiers: 0B49NF-E

Subjects: Articles, Reports, Conjecture, Corporate Actions, Management Changes, Media Summaries, Published Reports