Shattock, chairman and CEO of Beam Suntory Inc., to its board of directors, effective as of the close of business on Aug. 1, 2018. Shattock has helmed Beam Suntory during a period of global market outperformance, strategy transformation and value creation, including the successful integration of the Beam and Suntory spirits businesses. "As a veteran leader in the consumer packaged goods industry with global experience across many categories, Matt will add great perspective and value to our board," said Clorox lead director Pamela Thomas-Graham. "After joining Beam in 2009, he led the company through exponential growth of its iconic brands and has gone on to lead the successful transformation of the company. His strong track record of driving growth through innovation, brand communication and operational excellence, plus his deep-seated commitment to corporate citizenship, are a strong fit for Clorox as we continue to build our company to drive profitable growth with purpose-driven brands that provide superior value to our consumers.

"We will miss Jeff when he retires later this year," Thomas-Graham went on to say. "With his experience in the consumer packaged goods industry, he's brought great skills and expertise to the board in a variety of important areas, and he's made many contributions for the benefit of our stockholders during his nearly six years of service."

Shattock, 55, is chairman and CEO of Beam Suntory Inc., the world's third-largest premium spirits company. He has led Beam since 2009, first as an operating unit of Fortune Brands, next as a standalone public company, and then following its acquisition by Suntory Holdings Limited in 2014. Prior to joining Beam, Shattock held executive leadership roles during six years at confectionery company Cadbury PLC and previous to that during 16 years at global consumer goods company Unilever.

Shattock earned his bachelor's degree with honors from Durham University in 1982. He also attended the Royal Military Academy at Sandhurst and served as a tank troop commander in the British Army.
