

Uber CEO Dara Khosrowshahi learned about hack two months before making it public - WSJ
Friday, November 24, 2017 03:43:50 AM (GMT)

- In a front-page article, people familiar with the matter tell the WSJ that Khosrowshahi was told of the security breach two weeks after he became CEO 5-Sep.
- The sources tell the WSJ that Khosrowshahi said he wanted an investigation by Mandiant (FEYE) to be completed before he publicized the issue.
- Other people familiar with the matter tell the WSJ that Uber informed Softbank (9984.JP) about what was going on about three weeks ago.
- The article observes that companies like Equifax (EFX) have been criticized for delaying disclosures of data breaches by less than the two months the sources tell the WSJ Khosrowshahi allowed to elapse before the 21-Nov announcement.

Reference Links:

- Wall Street Journal

Industries: Communications Equipment, Computer & Internet Services

Primary Identifiers: 9984-JP, 0B49NF-E

Related Identifiers: 9984-JP, 0B49NF-E

Subjects: Articles, Reports, Conjecture, Media Summaries, Published Reports

Related Stories:

- Uber concealed Cyberattack for more than a year - Bloomberg