

Follow-up: Verizon (VZ), Yahoo! close to revised deal which would cut price by about $300M - WSJ
Thursday, February 16, 2017 03:35:29 AM (GMT)

- In an updated version of the article, people familiar with the matter tell the WSJ that the companies are talking about a deal that would see them share future liabilities resulting from Yahoo's data breaches.
- One source tells the WSJ that despite the uncertainty about where things are going, Verizon executives want to start integrating Yahoo and AOL.
- One source tells the WSJ that if it agrees to close the deal, Verizon would be giving up its right to sue Yahoo for covering the data breaches up.
- The sources tell the WSJ that an agreement could be reached this week and the deal could close in April, but an SEC investigation could slow things, since the SEC needs to approve Yahoo's proxy statement before its shareholders can vote on the deal.

Reference Links:

- Wall Street Journal

Industries: Communications Services, Computer & Internet Services

Primary Identifiers: VZ-US, LBTA.XX1-US

Related Identifiers: VZ-US, LBTA.XX1-US

Subjects: Articles, Reports, Conjecture, Mergers and Acquisitions, Media Summaries, M&A Other Announcements, Published Reports

Related Stories:

- Verizon \(VZ\) and Yahoo! close to a revised deal which would cut the price by about \$300M – WSJ, citing a source
- Verizon said to have reached a tentative revised agreement regarding a Yahoo! deal - Bloomberg