

CBS board said to have been aware of allegations against Moonves for months -- LA Times
Thursday, August 02, 2018 12:46:28 PM (GMT)

- Citing sources, the LA Times reports that the CBS board has known for several months that the LAPD was investigating allegations of sexual assault by CEO Les Moonves as he had disclosed the investigation to a board committee
- The board committee then brought in an external law firm to investigate the allegations, which concluded it didn't warrant any further action, according to a source cited in the report

Reference Links:

- LA Times

Industries: Broadcasting & Cable TV, Motion Pictures

Primary Identifiers: CBS-US

Related Identifiers: CBS-US

Subjects: Articles, Reports, Conjecture, Media Summaries, Published Reports

Related Stories:

- "BREAKING: Exclusive: After a review, LA prosecutors tell @NBCNews they have declined sex abuse charges against CBS CEO Les Moonves. - @anblanx" - Tweet by @NBCNightlyNews
- "CBS board meeting ends with no action against Les Moonves, other than the directors saying they're looking for outside counsel to investigate sexual misconduct allegations" - Tweet by @HowardKurtz
- CBS directors looking at whether chairman/CEO Les Moonves needs to temporarily step down - WSJ
- CBS issues statement in response to New Yorker article
- CBS' Les Moonves accused of sexual misconduct -- Hollywood Reporter